Building Western South Dakota's Water Future Together

Our Mission

Western Dakota Regional Water System is dedicated to securing a reliable, long term water supply for Western South Dakota through regional collaboration, sustainable planning, and engineering excellence. Our work is guided by a shared commitment to stewardship, resilience, and community driven solutions.

Why Membership Matters

Membership in WDRWS connects your organization to a network of communities, rural water systems, and partners who are shaping the region's future. Together, members:

- Strengthen collective advocacy for state and federal support
- Help guide water infrastructure planning and funding priorities
- Ensure community needs are represented in future water projects
- Build relationships with regional, state, and federal partners

Current Priorities

- Bureau of Reclamation feasibility study and federal authorization efforts
- Regional system integration and partnership development
- Long term infrastructure and drought resilience planning
- Developing a unified West River voice in support of water

How Membership Dues Are Used

- Advocacy and coordination with state and federal agencies
- Technical and feasibility studies
- Member outreach, education, and public awareness
- Annual meetings and regional collaboration

Engage and Participate

WDRWS members receive invitations to quarterly member meetings, regional planning workshops, and the Annual Meeting. These gatherings offer valuable opportunities to collaborate, share insights, and stay informed about the progress of the project.
